UCD Women's Hockey blaze way to first national title in 58 years

16 minutes into the Irish Senior Cup final last Sunday, the UCD Women's Hockey Team showed the presence and determination that would bring them to a final whistle win of 4:1 over Pegasus the clear favourites to take the title - Rachel Bourke set-up Roisin Flinn to score the first goal, and 2 minutes later a corner-strike by Holly Jenkinson put UCD 2:0...

Surecom Innovative Marketing Award

Written by Administrator
Tuesday, 14 April 2009 08:52

Surecom NS Ltd was delighted to present this year's winners of the Surecom Innovative Marketing award to a group of business students at Tipperary Institute today. Jim Sheehan, MD, who presented the award, commended all four groups who reached the final of the competition on their creativity, insight, teamwork and marketing expertise. "Now, more than ever we all need to think about innovative ways of promoting and marketing our businesses and there is real talent in this domain evident here among TI business students" says Sheehan.

The CESI form is enclosed. Please print off and sign then present to the Registration Desk at the Conference. The Fee is the best I can do, but it is a once-off -- you can attend either day OR both days on the strength of your registration.

There is also a digital copy of a document we weill be using in our session over the next few weeks: don't bother printing off, juts download and read te 'executive summary'.

Assignment 4 Cover & Receipt form.

This folder contains a soft copy of the Assignment cover and receipt form fro Assignment 4 - the last of the PP1 assignments.

You are free to print-off and use these OR alternatively to collect paper copies from the Education Office in early January. Please note: the forms will NOT be available from the office before the Christmas break.

Native users of digital technologies ‘from the unremarkable to the unrecognisable’

Green, H. & Hannon, C. (2007) Their Space. Demos: http://www.demos.co.uk/publications/theirspace .

That’s the first challenge facing all of us in HE over the coming years.

So far… we are demonstrating very convincingly that we haven’t a clue how to deal with it!

Elephant # 2

What powers the internet and what is its true nature?

What powers it?

- Sites that make up to $200,000 profit per month e.g Babylon-X.
- Successful NASDAQ companies like STARNET (valued at $40m).
- Rags to riches net empires: Seth Warshavsky - $20m per year; 26yrs old
- So, what do they trade?

Russian activist claims Estonia cyber attack

The member of a pro-Kremlin youth group has claimed to be behind the attacks on Estonia, which took down its internet network.

By Christian Lowe, Reuters, 13 Mar 2009 at 10:40

An activist with a pro-Kremlin youth group said he and his friends were behind an electronic attack on Estonia two years ago that paralysed the NATO state's internet network.

Ex-Soviet Estonia blamed the Russian government for the attack at the time, though Moscow denied involvement. The incident prompted the NATO military alliance to review its readiness to defend against "cyber-warfare."

Konstantin Goloskokov, an activist with Russia's Nashi youth group and aide to a pro-Kremlin member of parliament, said he had organised a network of sympathisers who bombarded Estonian internet sites with electronic requests, causing them to crash.

He said the action was a protest against the dismantling in 2007 of a Soviet-era monument to the Red Army from a square in the centre of Estonia's capital Tallinn. The removal prompted two nights of rioting by mainly Russian-speaking protesters.

"I was not involved in any cyber-attack. What I did and what my friends did was no kind of attack, it was an act of civil disobedience, absolutely legal," 22-year-old Goloskokov told Reuters in a telephone interview.

"Its aim was to express our protest against the policy of soft apartheid which has been conducted by the leadership of Estonia

Coordinated Russia vs Georgia cyber attack in progress

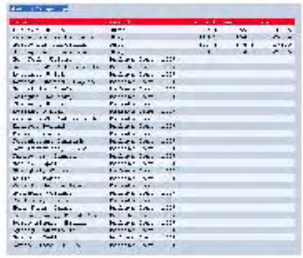
In the wake of the Russian-Georgian conflict, a week worth of speculations around Russian Internet forums have finally materialized into a coordinated cyber attack against Georgia's Internet infrastructure. The attacks have already managed to compromise several government web sites, with continuing DDoS attacks against numerous other Georgian government sites, prompting the government to switch to hosting locations to the U.S, with Georgia's Ministry of Foreign Affairs undertaking a desperate step in order to disseminate real-time information by moving to a Blogspot account.



Who's behind it? The infamous Russian Business Network, or literally every Russian supporting Russia's actions? How coordinated and planned is the cyber attack? And do we actually have a relatively decent example of cyber

Google has confirmed that access to YouTube in China has been blocked

Great Firewall of China blocks YouTube again

Protest videos said to be behind government move

Shaun Nichols in San Francisco
vnunet.com, 24 Mar 2009

The Chinese government has once again prevented its citizens from accessing video-sharing service YouTube.

Following reports that access to the site had been cut, a spokesperson from parent company Google confirmed to vnunet.com that YouTube was indeed being blocked.

"We do not know the reason for the blockage, and are working as quickly as possible to restore access to our users in China," the spokesperson said.

Google declined to comment further on whether it was speaking with the Chinese government about the matter.

The block is reported to have stemmed from a recent round of videos depicting protests and police reactions in Tibet. According to the BBC, one particular video depicted a policeman beating Tibetan monks and protestors.

This is not the first time that YouTube has run foul of the Chinese government. Similar Tibetan protest videos last year led the country to block domestic access to the site.

Civil rights groups have long been pressuring China to relax its controls on web content for sites such as YouTube and Wikipedia.

YouTube has also been the target of censorship campaigns from governments in Burma and Turkey over contentious video clips.

"We are your crisis!" A rebellious call for days of action against the London G20 Summit from london anarchists, updated 30 March 2009: "World leaders, including Barak Obama, are set to meet at Docklands Excel Centre in London's East End, for the G20 financial summit on April 2nd 2009 to sort out the global crisis they themselves conspired to create.

Join thousands of disgruntled, angry, pissed off people on the streets... As the bankers continue to cream off billions of pounds of our money, let's put the call out – Reclaim The Money, storm the banks and send them packing: April 1st 2009 in the square mile, City of London financial district..." more

Tomorrow's Teacher - share your vision of the future

From how we teach to where we teach, to who or what does the teaching - how should education evolve over the next generation? In January we will be launching a new competition for you and your class. The aim is to inspire you and your class to imagine the future: to consider how today's rapid pace of change will impact upon the educational needs of the next generation.

Tomorrow's Teacher will provide you with an engaging set of resources; inspirational programmes, lesson plans, worksheets, and related video content from Teachers TV. In addition, you will have the chance to enter two competitions and win some fantastic prizes. Register your interest to be the first to know when we launch.

New this week is the results of our Great School Movies poll. Over 3000 of you voted for your favourite film. You can watch the results in a top ten count down programme on the channel at 22.00 on Monday 8th December.

It's wider workforce week. We have some great programme for you. Picks of the week include Primary support staff - Peer mediation, Secondary TAs - from support staff to SENCO and Support Staff: What Matters To You - Professional Development

Finally, do you want Freeview+ box for free and brilliant TV in time for Christmas – but without an annual contract? We've joined forces with Top Up TV to bring you this great value offer. Click here for further details.

Interested?

Log in or register to express your interest and make sure you're the first to receive full details of these competitions.

Hamburger University – McDonald's Center of Training Excellence

Since its inception, training at Hamburger University has emphasized consistent restaurant operations procedures, service, quality and cleanliness. It has become the company's global center of excellence for McDonald's operations training and leadership development.

In 1961, Fred Turner, McDonald's former senior chairman and Ray Kroc's first grillman, founded Hamburger University in the basement of a McDonald's restaurant in Elk Grove Village, Illinois.

- February 24, 1961, Hamburger University's first class of 14 students graduated
- Today, more than 5,000 students attend HAMBURGER UNIVERSITY each year
- Since 1961, more than 80,000 restaurant managers, mid-managers and owner/operators have graduated from this facility

At McDonald's, our training mission is to be the best talent developer of people with the most committed individuals to Quality, Service, Cleanliness and Value (QSC&V) in the world. Our strong commitment to the training and development of our People has resulted in many "firsts" and honors, including being...

‘ The neoliberal university is affected by privatisation and underfunding in the same way that all public services are. Government underfunding reinforces the drive for cost savings, and it also guides university administrators toward forms of privatisation -- all of which are further encouraged by governments. Privatisation comes in many forms, including private financing of research, commercialisation of campuses, and increasing user fees in the form of tuition fees.’

Scotland teaching agency LTS launches iTunes U

I'm pleased to see that former colleagues in Learning and Teaching Scotland have managed to get their LTS iTunes U site opened, following our friends at the Open University. Scotland heads out as the first iTunes U provider of professional development material podcasts for those working with 3-18 year olds.

It's not been an easy journey. In 2005, on joining LTS to head up their Modern Languages work, I challenged the organisation to get podcasting (audio) the entire Scottish Learning Festival contents, and video as much as possible. Four years on we're still not able to access good quality recordings of everything, despite the costs of doing so being derisory and the long-tail interest being high - just take a look at the figures viewing what might be conceived as obscure education topics on the Slideshare site I created for the event.

We also had a challenge getting more audio and video material out in subsequent years through the now-defunkt Connected Live site, intended to be an evolution of the print magazine with media-rich addition to the limits

Dangers?

‘ … make the question of technology's social role central to our political thought and activity. The Convention is right that we must not patiently allow a new technological order to deeply rebalance tyranny and liberty.’
